

The Ricoh hybrid and remote work assessment.

The unexpected is the norm.

The exception is the rule.

When work happens, you find a way to get through it.

But you know you and your team deserve a better way.

If any of these challenges sound familiar, we get it. And we can help solve it.

Are you balancing security with seamless access?	This happens	Never happens
We need access to sensitive files when working remotely or on mobile.
Employees are on their own to manage personal devices, even if it risks company data.
It's important, but we struggle to engage employees in cybersecurity training.
Employees have multiple passwords for multiple platforms.
With our current workflow and tech, email attacks pose a larger threat.

Do your employees work like teammates or strangers?	This happens	Never happens
Employees need to work closely with people they have never met in person.
Some work groups are in Basecamp, others in Slack and still others just text message.
We've missed important information scattered across text, email, in-document messages.
Remote work can make our people feel like they're grinding away in solitude.
Teamwork is hampered when remote and hybrid staff don't have equal access to documents.

Ever feel like employees are working at half capacity?	This happens	Never happens
Important meeting notes, recordings and inputs are scattered across different platforms.
Software updates are managed individually.
Version control slows us down, and multiple "final" files cause confusion.
Scheduling remote meetings feels like we're in the time zone twilight zone.
Large files and server sync issues interrupt email delivery.
