Data collection with speed and reliability performed by forensics experts.

Complete, encrypted forensic collection

Our unique and patented Remlox™ Remote ESI Collection Tool is a powerful collection method that creates a complete, defensible, encrypted forensic image of a hard drive. It delivers a verifiable snapshot showing every sector of the computer's physical media.

Remlox™ Remote collection was designed to bridge the gap between full forensic acquisition and the risks associated with "self-collection." Deployed in 37 countries, it has been used in response to DOJ requests as well as court systems and corporations worldwide.

Targeted data collection in the cloud

Remlox™ Cloud is a user-friendly, cloud-based software solution that enables proportionality in data collection, using a targeted approach. It streamlines the collection process by allowing to efficiently gather only the types of files that are needed for their case.

Adding a new level of simplicity and automation to data collection, users can request a collection in the morning, using Ricoh's same-day email deployment, and be reviewing their data that same evening, utilizing one of Ricoh's document review solutions.

Our forensics experts will effectively collect your ESI, investigate your matters, and provide expert testimony for a truly defensible and auditable process.
